Project Synopsis

HairCare is an informational HTML5-based website on how to give a proper care for your hair for women.

The Objective of this program is to give a sample project to work on real life projects. These applications help you build a larger more robust application.

Project Analysis

Hair is probably one of the first things you notice about people when meeting them for the first time. This is especially true for women. Beautiful and shiny hair always leaves good impression, which is why proper hair care is important. Also, good care of your hair plays an important part in having healthy hair and helps avoid extensive damage that can lead to hair loss. Regular washing with celebrity advertised shampoos and conditioners is not enough. To have a healthy, strong and shiny hair, you need to know how to care for it daily.

Since the field is really vast, a need is felt that there should be a single platform which will give the complete information of haircare

Requirement Specification:

The Web site is to be created based on the following requirements.

1. Homepage with suitable logo and images, making use of sections.
2. Categorized menu which will include various categories as type of treatments available for various different hair problems like
 - a. Hair loss
 - b. Graying
 - c. Growth related
 - d. Premature baldness etc
3. The site should also include the various easy home remedies that can be helpful in dealing with various hair related issues.

4. There should be a section which will provide the details of hair care equipments like
 - a. Dryers
 - b. Straightners
 - c. Spray bottles
 - d. Steamers
 - e. Massagers
 - f. Spa caps
5. There should also be a section for hair care products as
 - a. Hair cream
 - b. Shampoo
 - c. Conditioners
 - d. Masks
 - e. Serums
 - f. Hairsprays
 - g. Various hair oils
6. Along with the various equipments, there should also be user manual/guidelines for ease of its use and maintenance.
7. The site should also include the details as of which companies provide which equipments
8. Comparison among the same equipment of different companies should be possible based on availability, cost major features
9. Gallery section should include most common instruments along with their necessary details.
10. There should be a section which will enable user to know latest developments in the field
11. Contact us page: contact us details with location should be displayed using GeoLocation API (eg. GoogleMaps).
12. Navigation needs to be smoother.
13. The look and feel of the project must be made user friendly and uniformity in the color combination must be maintained.

Project Design

HairCare website is based on a simple and basic, yet attractive design, and used web standards.

The site consists a total of seven pages; five main pages and two subpages.

1. Homepage

2. Gallery

3. Products

Services

- Treatments

- Equipments

4. About

5. Contact

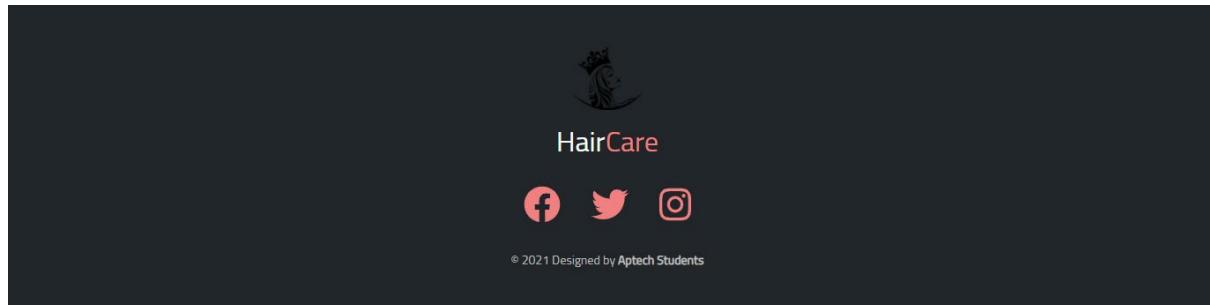

These pages mainly consists of header, main body, and footer.

The header displays a navigation bar that has a logo with the brand/company name and links to other pages on the right.

Home Gallery Products Services About Contact

The footer also consists of the logo and the brand/company name with social media links and icons.

Furthermore, the website consists of several hyperlinks attached to specific areas of web pages which can be used to switch between pages easily.

Welcome to HairCare Products

Start With Our Innovative Consultation

Over 80 factors are synthesized to create your custom formula. We start with micro details like hair thickness, condition, and texture, then move to the macro: the weather in your ZIP code, your workout routine, stress level, diet, and more. If you're vegan or gluten-free, your Prose can be, too.

By learning about your hair in its true context, we can give you products that fit—and work—better than anything before.

What goes into your HairCare is just as good as what you get out of it.

CERTIFIED CLEAN INGREDIENTS

Our products are — sulfate free, paraben free, gluten free, phthalates free, cruelty free, vegetarian, and keratin treatment safe.

SUSTAINABLY SOURCED

We source the best ingredients gathered in the most ethical way. When we find better ways forward, we take them.

CONSCIOUS IMPACT

As a certified company, we keep our impact on your hair, not the planet. Recyclable materials are a given; carbon-neutral operations is the goal.

Hair Loss and Treatments

There are many reasons why your hair might be falling out. Whether this is temporary, reversible, or permanent there are options you can consider that may help.

The most important step is to visit a doctor so that they can diagnose the cause of your hair loss.

Why Is My Hair Falling Out?

Finding hair in your brush is normal: We shed. But if a person starts losing an unusual amount of hair, it can be cause for concern.

Losing hair normally doesn't have much effect on your appearance or warmth, as your head has plenty more to make up for the daily loss. But there may be a more significant reason for your hair loss when you start seeing your scalp or bald spots.

When you think of hair loss, you may think of the genetic factors, such as female pattern baldness. Hormones, thyroid problems, and other diseases can all cause hair loss too.

So, what are these various causes, and how do you know if they're to blame for your excessive shedding?

They'll also be shown what they products they're missing out, and are offered to visit our store, the products page.

Nutritional deficiencies

Zinc and iron deficiency are the most common nutritional links to hair loss. But some evidence indicates that low intakes of the following vitamins and nutrients could also be to blame:

- fats
- vitamin D
- vitamin B-12
- vitamin C
- vitamin A
- copper
- selenium
- biotin

Check out the products we recommend that can help you overcome these nutritional deficiencies.

Then, the solution to your hair problem is provided.

Home Gallery Products Services About Contact

What can you do about hair loss?

As we have seen above, hair loss caused by hormonal changes, like pregnancy or menopause, or stress may not require any treatment. Instead, the loss will likely stop on its own after the body adjusts.

Nutrient deficiencies can usually be addressed through changes in diet, the use of supplements, and the guidance of a doctor or registered dietitian. The guidance of a doctor is necessary if the deficiency is caused by an underlying medical condition.

Any medical conditions that lead to hair loss should be treated directly to address the full condition, not just its symptoms.

That said, there are a number of possible medications and treatments for hair loss caused by female pattern baldness and other alopecia's. You may need to use one or a combination of treatments for months or years to see the full results.

Not just one but many different solutions to different types of hair and hair problems.

Corticosteroid injections

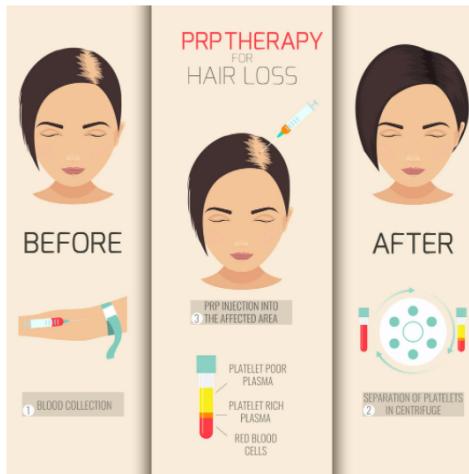

Women with hair loss due to alopecia areata may consider treatment with corticosteroids injected at multiple sites in the affected area.

Hair growth may be noticeable in as soon as four weeks, and treatment can be repeated every four to six weeks. Side effects with injections include:

- skin atrophy
- a thinning of the scalp skin

Topical corticosteroids are also available, but they aren't necessarily as effective, and oral corticosteroids may lead to unpleasant side effects.

Platelet-rich plasma (PRP) therapy

Platelet-rich plasma (PRP) therapy includes three steps:

1. Drawing a person's blood.
2. Processing it.
3. Injecting it back into the scalp.

This treatment is relatively new and, as a result, there isn't much research to support its effectiveness. That said, some studies have shown it to be a simple, cost effective treatment option.

PRP therapy involves several sessions within a four to six week period with maintenance every four to six months.

Possible risks include:

- injury to blood vessels or nerves
- infection
- scar tissue or calcification at injection points

Products that can treat your hair are also displayed.

Topical tretinoin

Retin-A, or topical tretinoin, is sometimes used as a combination therapy with minoxidil for androgenic alopecia.

It's important to use this type of medication under the guidance of your doctor. In some circumstances, tretinoin can actually cause hair loss.

Topical anthralin

In women with alopecia areata, anthralin is both safe and effective. It can be applied at home, once a day, starting with just 5 minutes and working up to periods as long as an hour.

After application, the scalp should be rinsed with cool water and cleaned with soap. New hair growth may sprout up in two to three months.

Sometimes, an issue is not that big to concern a doctor. Sometimes, problems can be solved by yourself. We have also provided home remedies that help you treat your hair.

Home Remedies for Hair Loss

If you're concerned about hair loss, you may want to try a home remedy to see if you can stop your hair from falling out. It's important to get diagnosed and find the underlying cause of your hair loss, so that you can treat it appropriately.

Supplements

Nutritional deficiencies can cause hair loss. Iron, zinc, niacin, selenium, vitamin D, and vitamin B-12 supplements can help your body produce hair that's strong and healthy. Remember to only buy supplements from sources that are vetted by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA).

Diet

Your diet can have an effect on hair loss. Eating a diet rich in antioxidants can help fight the signs of oxidative stress — environmental factors that damage hair follicles. Strawberries, blueberries, beans and legumes, spinach, and kale are all sources of antioxidants.

Sugar, processed fats, preservatives, and alcohol can all contribute to oxidative stress. Keep this in mind if you're looking to stop your hair from falling out.

Scalp massage

Scalp massage has been shown to promote hair growth. By promoting circulation in the area of growth, your hair may grow more quickly if you gently massage your scalp every time you wash your hair.

Essential oils

Essential oils are aqueous extracts of powerful botanical ingredients. Essential oils can be mixed with carrier oils, like jojoba and almond oil, to create a treatment to stimulate hair growth. Some essential oils might make your hair grow stronger. Research on these essential oils is mostly anecdotal, but we are learning more about how they work. Essential oils for hair growth include:

- peppermint
- Chinese hibiscus
- ginseng
- jatamansi

Manage stress

While trauma can come on suddenly and unexpectedly, you may be able to help manage ongoing stress in your life with exercise, like yoga, or mindfulness techniques, like meditation.

Some researchers are even exploring these alternative healing modalities in relation to reversing hair loss. The idea is that yoga and meditation may help regulate blood sugar and enhance circulation, promoting regrowth.

Quit smoking

Smoking can prematurely age your hair cells, making your hair follicles brittle and easy to damage. Speak to your doctor to come up with a smoking cessation plan right for you.

II. Equipments

Just like in the previous services page, we have also provided here a table of content for ease of access.

THE HAIR TOOLS THAT WILL CHANGE YOUR LIFE

— AND HOW TO USE THEM

Whether you're a seasoned pro or just starting out in the business, there are some basic tools that belong in your kit.

Our advice is to do your homework before making any purchase and to consider the tools of your trade as an investment. After all, it's your livelihood that's at stake. To make things easy, we've come up with a list of items that are absolutely essential for building the perfect and a healthy hair.

            <h1>Why HairCare?</h1>
            Hair is probably one of the first things you notice about people when meeting them for the first time. This is especially true for women. Beautiful and shiny hair always leaves good impression, which is why proper hair care
                is important. Also, good care of your hair plays an important part in having healthy hair and helps avoid extensive damage that can lead to hair loss. Regular washing with celebrity advertised shampoos and conditioners is not enough. To have a healthy, strong and shiny hair, you need to know HOW to care for it daily.

        <h2 id="whyhairloss">Why Is My Hair Falling Out?</h2>
        Finding hair in your brush is normal: We shed. But if a person starts losing an unusual amount of hair, it can be cause for concern.
        Losing hair normally doesn't have much effect on your appearance or warmth, as your head has plenty more to make up for the daily loss. But there may be a more significant reason for your hair loss when you start seeing your scalp or bald spots.
        When you think of hair loss, you may think of the genetic factors, such as female pattern baldness. Hormones, thyroid problems, and other diseases can all cause hair loss too.
        So, what are these various causes, and how do you know if they're to blame for your excessive shedding?

        <h3>Hormonal changes</h3>
        Women may lose hair following childbirth or while in menopause. Women who have hormonal imbalances can have hair loss.
        Aside from genetic female pattern baldness, women can lose hair as their hormonal composition changes with age.
        Hair loss is caused by your follicles' response to the hormone dihydrotestosterone (DHT).

        <h3>Thyroid disorders</h3>
        Perhaps one of the most common hormone-related causes for hair loss is a thyroid problem. Both too much thyroid hormone (hyperthyroidism) and too little (hypothyroidism) can lead to hair loss. Treating the thyroid disorder can often reverse the hair loss.

```

```

    <h3>Stress</h3>
    Physical and psychological stress can cause hair loss. Surgery, h igh fevers, and blood loss can cause enough stress to result in excessive shedding. Childbirth can resu lt in hair loss for several months after delivery. As for psychological stress, the link is less well-defined. However, many people have reported losing hair at times of extreme mental stress or anxiety. And hair loss for ot her reasons can still be stressful. The causes of physical stress are often temporary, and the hair l oss subsides as the body heals.
    You can combat mental stress with lifestyle changes, such as:
        <ul>
            <li>daily exercise</li> <li>proper nutrition</li>

has tied hair loss to lower self-esteem, body image issues, and increased anxiety.

Many of these nongenetic causes for hair loss can be successfully treated, and the hair loss averted and even reversed.

<h5>We'll go over common, conventional, and complementary treatments available to treat hair loss.</h5>

<h2>What can you do about hair loss?</h2>

As we have seen above, hair loss caused by hormonal changes, like pregnancy or menopause, or stress may not require any treatment. Instead, the loss will likely stop on its own after the body adjusts.

Nutrient deficiencies can usually be addressed through changes in diet, the use of supplements, and the guidance of a doctor or registered dietitian. The guidance of a doctor is necessary if the deficiency is caused by an underlying medical condition.

Any medical conditions that lead to hair loss should be treated directly to address the full condition, not just its symptoms.

That said, there are a number of possible medications and treatments for hair loss caused by female pattern baldness and other alopecia's. You may need to use one or a combination of treatments for months or years to see the full results.

<h3>Minoxidil topical solution</h3>

Also known as Rogaine, this over-the-counter (OTC) medication can be used with alopecia areata or androgenic alopecia.

This drug comes in foam or liquid form and is spread on the scalp each day. It may cause more hair loss at first, and new growth may be shorter and thinner than before. You may also need to use it six months or more to prevent further loss and promote regrowth. Side effects include:

 - scalp irritation
 - hair growth on other parts of the face or hands that come in contact with the medication
 - tachycardia (rapid heart rate)

<h3>Prescription spironolactone pills</h3>

Otherwise known as Aldactone, the drug spironolactone works to treat hair loss by addressing hormones.

Specifically, it binds to androgen receptors and decreases the body's processing of testosterone.

Not all researchers agree that it works effectively, and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has not labeled it as a treatment for androgenic alopecia.

Talk to a doctor or pharmacist about possible benefits and risks of spironolactone.

<h3>Corticosteroid injections</h3>

Women with hair loss due to alopecia areata may consider treatment with corticosteroids injected at multiple sites in the affected area.

Hair growth may be noticeable in as soon as four weeks, and treatment can be repeated every four to six weeks. Side effects with injections include:

 - skin atrophy
 - a thinning of the scalp skin

Topical corticosteroids are also available, but they aren't necessarily as effective, and oral corticosteroids may lead to unpleasant side effects.

You can apply laser light treatment two to three times a week. It may take several weeks to a few months before seeing results.
It's important to note that laser treatment is not as regulated as medications are with the FDA. Long-term safety and other considerations are unknown. Currently, there are no adverse effects associated with laser therapy.

<h1>Hair Graying: What, Why & How To Reverse Premature Graying?</h1>

Premature white hair giving you nightmares? If you're one of those youngsters who is dealing with unwanted gray hair and trying to reverse it through various tricks, this article is a must-read for you.

Graying hair is a part of your natural ageing process. Your skin has millions of hair follicles that contain a pigment called melanin. As you age, hair follicles lose this pigment turning your hair into gray. Scroll down to find out what causes premature graying and how you can deal with it.

    <h2 id="grayhaircauses">What Causes White Hair?</h2>

        <h4>Genetics</h4>
        According to studies, premature graying is related to genetics. It is likely that you will have gray hair at an early age if your mother or father had premature gray hair. It is also related to geography and race according to a study performed in 2013. People in a certain country can have gray hair much earlier than people in other countries. White people can get white hair even in their 20s, while Asian people most likely start getting white hair in their mid 20s. For African-Americans, the age of graying hair starts at 30.

        <h4>Stress</h4>
        Stress can lead to a flood of problems like anxiety, high blood pressure, sleeping issues, skin disorders and so on. Adding to this list is premature graying of hair. Yes, stress can turn your hair gray. A study done in 2013 observed a link between stress and depletion of stem cells in the hair follicles of mice.

    <h4>Oxidative Stress</h4>
    Oxidative stress can be a reason behind your premature white hair. It happens when there is an imbalance between free radicals and antioxidants. When your antioxidants are not adequate to retaliate the effects of free radicals, it leads to many health issues, including ageing. Excessive oxidate causes a condition called vitiligo. It kills your melanin cells, leading to premature gray hair.

III. JavaScript

There aren't much custom JavaScript used, just one function.

window.addEventListener('scroll', function () { var nav = document.querySelector('nav');
    var windowPosition = window.pageYOffset > 0;
    nav.classList.toggle('navbarScroll', windowPosition);

This function changes the navigation bar style on scroll.
